Next Meet-up: September 29th at 19.00

Dear women,

The Women in STEM Virtual Meet-up is officially back after the summer holidays!

I am so happy to have Smiti Nathan PhD with us as our speaker for this month.

She'll be talking about "Designing Your STEM Life Outside of Academia". Smiti has had a really interesting career both inside and outside of academia and has supported academics with Life Design tools at Johns Hopkins University. To learn more about her and the talk check out the information below.

Don't forget to register below to receive the Zoom link for the meeting on September 29th at 19.00.

(Make sure to check your spam folder after you register just in case 📧)

Looking forward to seeing you next week!

Warm greetings,

Francesca

Smiti Nathan, PhD

Smiti is a Senior User Experience (UX) Research at J.P. Morgan Chase. In terms of the design world, She's keen to keep learning about design justice and equity frameworks, as well as keep iterating on her life design work that she started while being an educator at Johns Hopkins University. In addition, she continues her archaeological research, which focuses on human decision-making strategies in ancient Oman and Ethiopia. She loves sharing what she does with diverse audiences through writing blog posts, articles, and various social media handles.

Designing Your STEM Life Outside of Academia

The skills and experiences you have gained and continue to nurture during your STEM graduate and/or postdoctoral work do translate beyond academia. This session focuses offers tools and support to support you to start designing your STEM Life in a way that is meaningful to you.
