Objectives: Ready to make a change in your career? About to graduate? Not sure what's next? Feeling a little stuck or pulled in multiple directions? This is the right time to join our Workshop. Using the methodology of design thinking principles this workshop gives you the tools to deliberately and creatively shape your personal and professional future.

Using the methodology of design thinking principles this workshop gives you the tools to deliberately and creatively shape your personal and professional future. It empowers you to identify and articulate your strengths and interests, create individualized career opportunities, and come up with an action-plan tailored to your needs, talents and passions.

You will develop clarity and focus regarding what matters to you. You will discover new ways of thinking about your personal and professional life that will energize you and move you forward. In addition, you will learn a dynamic and innovative method for overcoming future personal or professional obstacles.

At the end of the workshop you will be able to:

- Critically analyze the thought patterns and assumptions that underlie your actions
- Identify your unique professional and personal assets
- Clarify and articulate your authentic interests and values
- Prototype and test innovative career options
- Develop a concrete goal for your mid-term career as well as draw a realistic road-map to get you there.
